word-wrapping code-lines: I fixed this by setting "Paint line at column" to 0 (in Setup/Settings/Editor)
and it seems to have stopped the wrapping - I'll monitor.. & maybe is the reason you cannot replicate it navigator:

Quote:Well, my reason for having it right is that I want to have text in proper center, not look right all the time.

All in all, this is debatable, so I will stick with my instict for now. I anybody else complains about this, I might change the default...

Just my half-a-cent: it's bad form to change de-facto standard behaviour on a personal whim; I know I can and do change it back to the original, but I should not have to...
As a member of the Upp-user-community who have invested many-many thousands of lines code in production I really do not want the tool to change behaviour (or appearance) when I amend existing projects.
Such changes to standard behaviour/appearance should be based on community vote/agreement (it's like driving a car with stick-lever-gears that suddenly changes into steering-wheel-button-gears while you are motoring along - not healthy) :p
