
Subject: Re: CTRL + C = 659 Heap leaks
Posted by mirek on Thu, 11 Jul 2019 22:18:45 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

BTW, about hunting down leaks (even if I believe there are not any here):

In the log you can see:

```
--memory-breakpoint__ 33474
```

If the allocation pattern is stable (like the number is always the same in any run), you can resolve the leak by putting this to commandline when running the code - this will cause an exception when the same allocation is done again.
