Hello koldo,

Right know GitHub acts as a official repository, however it is still the mirror. The point we did is that we want to encourage people to create their pull request from their and support the U++ project. I think Mirek right know is the only person who can reapply PR directly to U++ mirror. You can not click "Merge" button as you can on regular git repository.

In your case <https://github.com/ultimatepp/ultimatepp/pull/11> you can just copied code from PR and commit is as regular commit to upp SVN repository and write that the PR can be closed. Personally, I would like to see better workflow here, but this is what we have now.

Sincerely,
Klugier
