

---

Subject: Re: Linux U++ libraries

Posted by mirek on Sat, 28 Mar 2020 16:19:50 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

koldo wrote on Sat, 28 March 2020 15:05Quote:I think the best is to avoid .bm completely and just setup these in the ide when there is no .bm available. In this case, as in Windows, it could be an "Automatic build methods setup.." option, although I think TheIDE should have to be fully ready after make install.

Actually, this already works... And there is no difference really, if there are no .bm, ide makes them on start. You would not notice that happened.