
Subject: Re: theIDE segmentation fault [BUG]
Posted by piotr5 on Thu, 21 Sep 2006 13:09:48 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Putting this -fexceptions as GCC-compiler options into the relevant plugin-projects does cure the abort-signal. why hasn't this solution been put into uvs? as far as I know, -fexceptions does take up more resources (with c-files only of course), and therefore shouldn't be used as a default. am I wrong?
