It's definitely not your fault. I have a bad PSU that causes spontaneous reboots and I haven't been able to replace it. That said, it is anomalous that this corruption only seems to happen to files in theide and nowhere else so it made me wonder if there are ways to reduce the likelihood of data loss in less than ideal situations. It's also happened where I lost a file when I caused a runtime error that ended in a crash of just theide. Are theide and an app under development somehow sharing memory?
