Subject: Re: [PROPOSAL] Configurable web search menu for TheIDE
Posted by mirek on Thu, 12 Nov 2020 19:31:26 GMT

Oblivion wrote on Wed, 11 November 2020 16:22Hello Klugier,

Quote: would personally simplify editor menu. Too many options there is not good option and might be misleading. So I opt for moving "Search on Google" and "Search on the official site.." to "Search on menu"

OK.

Quote:however we should use regular TheIDE serialization procedures (binary) and bump settings version

I was hesitant to add a Serialize method (not to disrupt TheIDE's config settings), but this sounds OK to me. Still, I'd prefer an external file in human-readble form (Json seems very good to me. besides it can allow us to easily change/add new stuff if need be).

Agreed. JSON is a bit off (we mostly have key=value pairs), but it is ok.

Quote:
p.s: Speaking of consistency, I think TheIDE's toolbar should have an Icon for "Settings" menu entry.

Do not quite agree - if it is settings, it should not be needed that often.

Mirek