To be clear I just proposed to have the same behavior as for entries that are not documented (It is already documented in Topic++):

So for documented entries on right click it could open menu as proposed in the my previous message for consistency with the previous behavior. I agree that jumping to edit mode faster seems to be good idea. In this case we should decide between double click or ctrl+click. In the new implementation the left should open documentation in help as proposed by Dider.

Double-click: edit
Right-click: menu, with "Edit" if already documented
Click: go to help window
