Hello Mirek,

As I proposed early UppHub should not be under mirek-fidler. It should be in ultimatepp organization as separate repository. The organization is easier to find and it is common good. Right now we have several people in organization, so we can give them rights to maintain the list. Also, I would like to have everything in one place. So, I do not jump to mirek-fidler when I am look at ultimatepp repository.

I still see that package manifest is integrated with the ".json" file. What is your plan here? Do you plan to let repository construct manifest and keep single link on the list?

Would be nice to have some hind of json validation on CI/CD to do not break the list. This can be implemented later.

Klugier