The truth is that I do not have nor idea of how causing that this works in Windows. I'm tried and I have your same problem.

I'm writing a program towards which to be able to send customized email to many directions.

Initially I thought about using classes GPL of jwSMTP that there is in sourceforge (my program will be GPL). I have proven them and work well in Windows and Linux.

We could watch the code of those classes and to see how it works I believe that it is a heavy work.
