Subject: Re: .gitignore
Posted by Novo on Mon, 21 Jun 2021 22:20:52 GMT

mirek wrote on Mon, 21 June 2021 17:48What is the point?

Mirek
For example, I often intentionally/accidentally alter Upp source code.
At some point I need to check a status of Upp source code.
I also need to check presence of my own configuration files inside of the Upp repo.
.cache folder is often created inside of the git repo. This is pretty much the case with all my test builds.
Well, I can live without this .gitignore file, but in this case my status view will always be spammed.