

---

Subject: Re: .gitignore

Posted by mirek on Tue, 22 Jun 2021 18:20:24 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Novo wrote on Tue, 22 June 2021 15:13mirek wrote on Tue, 22 June 2021 01:49

Well, that is the essence why I am asking. Why is .cache there?

I mean, we worked hard to isolate build files from the source tree, that is why gitignore feels like weird request...

Automatically created configurations. Each lives in its own folder. I can have dozens of them on one machine.

One per a compilers, for example.

Whatever. I'll survive without that.

I can actually do it, no problem, but I guess it would be better to do that when git becomes primary repo (so far, it is still just downstream from svn).

---