<1> INSTALLATION: Install dialogs need to be updated. Microsoft Visual C++ free edition 2003 is no longer available (replaced by 2005); but I don't like the Microsoft bloatware anyway and prefer MinGW. And although the latest build comes with the compiler pre-installed, the confusing message about downloading and installing another MinGW copy makes install painful for newvians.

Thanks for bringing this to my attention - TheIDE now suggests the new Microsoft SDK which includes C++ compiler (8.0). (What a pity there is still no free compiler for PocketPC).
