It is for the same purpose.

Go into your project's directory, run git init, then you'll see when you right click on that project you can synchronize it. Deselect Pull/Push so you can Add every file you want into the repository, make a commit message. Then you can go back, add your credentials for github and push into it.