Coming from jobs where I used Qt, I was surprised to find a job description with required experience in U++. I was curious and had to have a look at this ominous framework. My surprise was big when I learned that this is a GUI framework, that had totally escaped by long search for alternatives to Qt. This is my second day poking around the u++ tutorials and I have to admit, everything I have seen so far is absolutely marvellous.
So, here I am saying hello :d
