I saw that there is a compilation issue on older Linux distributions due unable to handle new AES stuff. I am also aware that you comited workaround to fix this problem. What should we do in context of release? Should we proceed with 2025.1.1 and then release proper fix with 2025.1.2 or should we wait and fix this issue. I think we shouldn't wait with 2025.1.1 the fastest we release the batter. The addressed issues are critical.

AES is post 2025.1 (AFAIK - please check).
