I have a few questions about your GridControl: Is it derived from ArrayCtrl? That would be good, because it would provide all the fancy features of that one. Is the GridControl strongly coupled with sqlite? That would not be that good, because the column & row dragging features might be needed in several places where SQL is not.