

---

Subject: Stripping an executable doesn't reduces it's size

Posted by filipenf on Tue, 19 Dec 2006 10:20:10 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Hello, I've generated a small executable and I've configured it with the MINGW optimal.

The size of executable is about 2.5mb and after I stripped it the size remains the same.

My question is: does theIDE strips the binary after compilation?

I need to know more about the blitz build, what is it, how does it work, etc...

Thanks

---