I would love to have such featur too, to be able to use IDE only for edit and building projects with pmake within IDE.

Than again, you can still use IDE to edit sources, and run make in separate command line window.

Makes the error messages from compiler harder to follow, so it's probably not as efficient as your current setup, it's up to you to consider such setup. I don't like it yet, but I will maybe evaluate it later.
