Subject: Re: SqlArray::SetDistinct()
Posted by Novo on Sun, 31 Dec 2006 04:19:14 GMT

Thank you!

I got the idea. Just two remarks:

to a WHERE part. DISTINCT breaks master-detail relationship.

2) Instead of building an SQL statement in place you can analyze an already build statement and retrieve a list of columns to select and a FROM part. You already have a tree, which represents an SQL statement. You do not have to parse anything. You are a lucky man!

Happy New Year !!!