

---

Subject: Drawing Question

Posted by Anonymous on Sat, 26 Aug 2006 17:46:48 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

when look into the Paint routine of TreeCtrl and ArrayCtrl, strange to see when drawing a line, DrawRect is used not DrawLine, so why, can someone teach me this?

---

---

Subject: Re: Drawing Question

Posted by unodgs on Sat, 26 Aug 2006 20:24:04 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

hongdong wrote on Sat, 26 August 2006 13:46 when look into the Paint routine of TreeCtrl and ArrayCtrl, strange to see when drawing a line, DrawRect is used not DrawLine, so why, can someone teach me this?

Because is faster to draw a rectangle than a line on most gpus. If you simulate drawing horizontal and vertical lines using rectangles gpu doesn't have to calculate Bresenham factors and can optimize memory writes - whatever that could mean (because it knows that gfx memory will be accessed linearly).

---