Hello,

I would like to add some documentation to my application by using Topic. I would like to know if the .tpp files are compiled and added to the executable or I can keep them a part in some directory (my doc is 1 mega byte because of many pictures).

PS: only now I've recognized to have missed the correct forum for this question, , sorry...

No separate files for U++ (one of design goals).

They are linked in the .exe.

In case of big documentation, with support for different languages, this means that it is better to create a separate doc.exe file to avoid a huge application.exe (this because of the many pictures inside). Good to know.

Thanks,
Luigi
