
Subject: Too many groups

Posted by unodgs on Sat, 07 Jan 2006 13:42:13 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Hi!

I think this forum is over-complicated. I mean too many groups were created.

My proposition is:

- 1 Various polls, Coffee corner, Don't like?..., Thank you for ... should be merged into one.
- 2.U++ and Win32 and U++ and POSIX should be removed
3. In General programming POSIX and X11 should be combined into one and named UNIX
4. Forum Functionality and Design is splited into 4 subcategories. I think there should be just 'Forum Functionality and Design'

What do you think?

Subject: Re: Too many groups

Posted by fudadmin on Sat, 07 Jan 2006 16:07:17 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

unodgs wrote on Sat, 07 January 2006 08:42Hi!

I think this forum is over-complicated. I mean too many groups were created.

My proposition is:

- 1 Various polls, Coffee corner, Don't like?..., Thank you for ... should be merged into one.
- 2.U++ and Win32 and U++ and POSIX should be removed
3. In General programming POSIX and X11 should be combined into one and named UNIX
4. Forum Functionality and Design is splited into 4 subcategories. I think there should be just 'Forum Functionality and Design'

What do you think?

Yes, I agree with most of your mentioned points and I was thinking about it, too.

So:

1. I've deleted Various polls- they can be entered in any topic and shown with "Show polls".
I've merged Thank you and Don't like but left Coffee corner to have a place for general, social etc. chat.

2,3 Check how is it now?

4. I've left 2 subcategories here because I need a separate "technical" subcategory to catch attention in those cases.

Opinions?
