Well when i saw the site posted on first message, i read the comments that were written about Upp. Don't be angry with be and the questions that i want to do.

Quote:"Very few source code comments"

a) This team are is work to get more code comments?

Quote:"Only a single active developer"

b) A project that have 1 developer can not transmit much security to the future of the applicattion because we depend only of the knowledge of this developer and we are limited from this. Can we expet more?

Sorry about questions but i realy like this team, is almost as a family   and i care about the future of this project.
Sorry about my poor english. Thanks

1 developer: svn repository, where they get data from, is secondary for U++. Daniel (unodgs) just commits it from time to time.

Comments in the code: External documentation is prefered (although this policy can change later).
