Subject: Annoying mouse wheel scrool bug in editor

In TheIDE if you have multiple files open, and you use the mouse wheel to scroll the document without moving the cursor, and then switch to another editor in a different tab, when changing back, the editor does not remember the position it was scrolled to and reverts to the cursor position.

I find this very annoying. Every time I change a tab I need to rescroll to a position. If this is not a bug and is an intended behavior, could we get an option in Environment or some way to disable this?

I agree with that one.... it has been like this since ever, but it's annoying to me too
