Hi,

I have got an idea how to freshen U++ homepage - basically I plan to scan the forum news and repost them as "U++ news" on homepage...

The direct effect for now is that "Changelog" forum is deprecated; smaller changes will be on svn, bigger ones on "News".

Maybe make a quality made in blogs - a moderator in a special field identifies the message, which must be placed on the main page (semi-automatic).

Maybe even place the page of video-manual/video-presentations. It would be very cool! I found a nice tool - Wink, which allows you to make a video-guide to html / flash (Example like that http://www.svsoft.ru/demo.html).

We can upload into the site source of video clips that users of its language would have changed the commentary.

And maybe make the multi-language sections on the site (not on forum)? I am ready to support the Russian version of the narrative portion of the site.
