Hi,

I would like to as all contributors not to forget about commit messages.

Preferable format is something that will reference the package(s) affected and change(s) made, e.g.:

"bazaar-Controls4U: Fixed Meter widget"

Sorry Mirek

It was my fault.

When submitting new packages I had a terrible mistake in some step and I mixed packages in my computer with other packages in svn . I almost loose part of the job...

I "brute force" fixed the problems in svn server and as the nightmare in my .svn local files remained, finally I copied the bazaar downloaded files to my working copy, so the actual .svn files work well.

I reinstalled again TortoiseSvn (the solution for dummies)

Best regards
Koldo

You didn't attached a commit log to your commits when you've committed to bazaar.

I am very sorry for the inconvenience. I use RapidSVN and there as it is automatically a message, I thought that this is quite enough.
Once again sorry, and could you explain how a serious accident because of me happened?

Not very serious.

Actually, the main purpose of log messages is to have a quick summary of new features for release.

But it is always good to know what is going on... Logs provide quite a quick review, see:
