Subject: Stable releases interval

Hi,

I was just wondering if the stable releases cycle has intentionally been extended significantly...? There has not been a stable release in more than three months now.

(I'm not saying, I could or would not dare to use nightly SVN builds, but stable releases have been a convenient way to keep up with the current development efforts without taking unnecessary risk in using a 'in middle of something' version for production. I for one certainly don't know when is the right time to take a nightly build to be used in production.)

Best regards,

Tom

Hello Tom1

You are right. This long delay has been caused because of temporal reasons.

I think that from the middle of October we will recover the usual announcements frequency.

OK, thanks for the update Koldo. Good to know the stable releases will be continued.

Best regards,

Tom
