Subject: Redmine
Posted by mirek on Sun, 23 Jan 2011 22:43:49 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

OK, it seems I have succeded installing redmine (well, almost, there is still sendmail config missing...)

Anyway, if you wish to have access to the Redmine, please send me your email. I expect mostly those with access to primary svn to do so, password will be the same.

Note: If you plan to actively participate in U++ development, you NEED an access to the Redmine

Mirek

Subject: Re: Redmine
Posted by dolik.rce on Mon, 24 Jan 2011 07:52:24 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

mirek wrote on Sun, 23 January 2011 23:43OK, it seems I have succeded installing redmine (well, almost, there is still sendmail config missing...)

Anyway, if you wish to have access to the Redmine, please send me your email. I expect mostly those with access to primary svn to do so, password will be the same.

Note: If you plan to actively participate in U++ development, you NEED an access to the Redmine

Mirek

Hi Mirek,

So the forum will stay the main bug reporting platform for users and redmine will be used only as internal issue tracking for developers? I can see few advantages (e.g. not so many not-a-bug issues) but on the other hand it seems to me that excluding the users from access (or making them register) might discourage them a little from cooperation...

Best regards,
Honza

Subject: Re: Redmine
Posted by sergeynikitin on Mon, 24 Jan 2011 08:59:14 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Mantis is not seen as a bugtracker?
Or why the Mantis rejected?

Subject: Re: Redmine
Posted by mirek on Mon, 24 Jan 2011 10:13:10 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

dolik.rce wrote on Mon, 24 January 2011 02:52So the forum will stay the main bug reporting platform for users and redmine will be used only as internal issue tracking for developers? I can see few advantages (e.g. not so many not-a-bug issues) but on the other hand it seems to me that excluding the users from access (or making them register) might discourage them a little from cooperation...

Best regards,
Honza

I guess we might add a view to website. But I really would like to have bugs reported in the forum first (because of not-a-bug issues).

That said, everything can change later. I guess this is quite conservative first small step...

Mirek

Subject: Re: Redmine
Posted by mirek on Mon, 24 Jan 2011 10:14:47 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

sergeynikitin wrote on Mon, 24 January 2011 03:59Mantis is not seen as a bugtracker?
Or why the Mantis rejected?

Everybody has some favorite.

The redmine has won for simple reason - I have experience with it and it is directly supported by ubuntu... (well, uhm, more or less

Subject: Re: Redmine
Posted by mirek on Thu, 27 Jan 2011 19:58:40 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

mirek wrote on Sun, 23 January 2011 17:43
Anyway, if you wish to have access to the Redmine, please send me your email. I expect mostly those with access to primary svn to do so, password will be the same.

Ops, I should have been more clear:

Send me your email ADDRESS -> no need to use email to request redmine access, you can do so by PM or ICQ or whatever. I need the email address because Redmine sends email notifications.
