Hello,

Would it be hard to provide a "This week's messages" (or, even better: last 7/n days) in addition to "Today's messages" on the forum? I do not have the time to check the new messages every day and this would be handy.
Or is there already a way to construct and store such a filter?

Best regards,

Frank

Hi Frank,

Doesn't "Unread messages" solve that? If you are logged in, it will show you all the messages you haven't read yet. Just note that messages are marked as read in three cases: 1) you open their thread, 2) you click on "Mark all messages as read" (bellow category listing) or 3) you click on "More unread messages" under the unread messages listing. So if you read all the messages when you come (or mark them as read), the next week the option "Unread messages" gives you all the messages since your last visit.

Best regards,
Honza

hey, I think, it has been already discussed.
You should click "Message navigator" and enter 7 (days) or 1 (week).
Or whatever range you want...

Thanks. It does somehow indeed. But the solution in message #31197 seems to be a bit more what I wanted.

Thank you anyway.

I have to admit that I never even noticed that there is a such thing as "message navigator" Good to know, maybe it'll be handy someday in the future...
