

---

Subject: HttpHeaders now supports SCGI

Posted by mirek on Sun, 20 May 2012 18:00:15 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

HttpHeader is now capable to handle both plain HTTP requests or also SCGI request - they simply get 'translated' and after parsing the content of HttpHeaders is same as if request was direct HTTP.

The heuristics is simple: If HttpHeaders::Read finds the first character of request to be digit, it considers it SCGI.

This way we have unique feature as servers based on HttpHeaders will be able to process both HTTP and SCGI without configuration changes

---