"customize toolbar.." - dinamic creation of buttons with a right click and choices of icons and their sizes...
Opinions?

I usually choose which buttons I have on the toolbar according to their colour rather than functionality so that I get nice colour scheme

Also good would be the ability to add your own toolbars and auto-hide windows into the IDE. The content of these would be generated using uncrashable ESC macros (ala slickedit - again!).

One day, a repository for people's ESC macros will be needed somewhere.

I think UPP needs a few more developers to get all these dreams realised

Actually, this is more "Library wishlist"

I think that creating more elaborate ToolBar (and MenuBar as well) is necessary in future. I already have ideas how to do that, just there are many more important issues to resolve first....

Seems like a good place to me. (Just another forum topic I guess?)

I've got so many things to do I don't know when I'll get round to trying an ESC macro!
