With great and very tedious effort, I have managed to more or less find a way how to migrate the forum data.

It is now in testing mode here:

<http://www.ultimatepp.org/forums>

It is using some month or two old dump, so no everything is going to be same. Also, structure will have to be restored and theming redone, but all of that can be done later, on production copy.

Please test if you see all message data, attachment, if login works etc...

Thanks!

Mirek

Hello Mirek

Thank you for your effort. When I try to login I get this:
"Your account was permanently banned from accessing the site, due to a violation of the forum's rules."

Hello Mirek,

I have got the same problem like Koldo.

The other issue is that my email adress is publicly visible. Moreover I have got skype address assigned to my profile (I have never given this information).

Sincerely,
Klugier

Hi Mirek,

Good work. it seems to work fine for me. I was only asked to confirm my email address, but that is no big deal.

The new versions feels much faster than current one. I really like that.

Best regards,
Honza

Please try now... Should mostly fixed. Unfortunately, I am afraid that personal settings will have to be checked/fixd by user. Also, I had to remove all moderation priviledges, will be restored later.

Hello Mirek,

It seems that all users has got strange date of registretion:

Date Registered: Thu, January 01, 1970

Sincerely,
Klugier

Well, it seems to got lost during the migration... I guess I could fix that by moving registration dates from the current forum.

Is it worth it?

Hi,

It seems I have gained a Skype address -- although I have not specified any. (The contents appears to come from the Time Zone field.)

[Send user an e-mail message] may be handy as long as it does not leak the e-mail address.

The Private Messaging seems to have disappeared. Is the email functionality supposed to replace that? Currently it leaks the senders registered e-mail address.

Best regards,

Tom

No, those appear to be just more glitches. Thanks for reporting.

To explain what probably causes most troubles here: the forum software has single integer users_opt mysql column per user, where various flags are stored as bit fields. I looks like the meaning of some of those bits has changed, but the migration did not take this into the account. So I have to 'fix' it by SQL, but fix inevitably means I have set the same values for all users in the forum.

Hopefully fixed remaining flags.

Skype/Google now deleted.

Also fixed Home Page settings.

If no more problems are reported, I will perform the production forum upgrade over the next weekend... (and we will finally be free of those ugly chinese spam farms...)

Hello Mirek,

I have got one technical question. Should not be visible more posts on the forum site. On new forum I see one message per site and I can switch beetween messages by clicking on the links. It is not super comfortable.

So it is possibility that new forum will work like this forum?

Sincerely,
Klugier

The last problem I see is that my timezone setting is lost (and set to someplace in Africa), but that is definitely not a big deal...

For me it works OK - but perhaps I do not understand the problem.

Could you perhaps send some screenshort?

Could an option be included for how the main forum screen is displayed.
In different lighting conditions it is very hard to distinguish between the colored symbol and the grayed.

Maybe have an option to only display the colored and have no symbol displayed when there are no new posts.
Or a hollow symbol.
Anything to distinguish between the two.

For someone that has just one desk computer always with the same lighting it is fine but for a notepad or slate computer in some lighting conditions it is very difficult and irritating.
